

Media Release

Embargoed until 05/06/18

The Well Academy have signed a collaboration agreement with global Root Cause Analysis (RCA) specialists Sologic, enabling The Well Academy to deliver RCA training in Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg and Germany.

Sologic Root Cause Analysis is a powerful, scalable and transferable complex problem-solving method. Sologic RCA enables organisations to investigate incidents, improve performance and reduce risk.

The Well Academy and Sologic have agreed to collaborate on the delivery of Sologic Root Cause Analysis training. This agreement gives The Well Academy the capability to provide companies across the geographic territories of Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg and Germany with outstanding RCA training.

Organisations across multiple sectors have embedded Sologic's state-of-the-art Root Cause Analysis method. Throughout the training, supported by expert instructor mentoring, delegates will gain the knowledge, tools and confidence to lead, manage and communicate successful RCA investigations. Sologic RCA enables them to support their organisations in solving everything from everyday issues through to tough and recurring problems. By applying Sologic's RCA method, organisations are able to tackle real-world problems within safety, reliability, quality, service and compliance.

"We are delighted to collaborate with a partner like The Well Academy. Their well established and professionally run facility in Apeldoorn, The Netherlands, provides an excellent base and training facility for delivery of Sologic Root Cause Analysis to companies across Benelux and Germany." said Jonathan Batchelor, Sologic Managing Director.

The Sologic method enables RCA facilitators and teams to effectively and efficiently identify true causes and effective solutions. This method enables teams to make informed business decisions and directly supports achievement of their company business goals.

George Galloway, Director of The Well Academy explained "Successful delivery of projects must be underpinned by excellent human and organisational performance. At The Well Academy we strive to raise levels of competence and confidence of our client's personnel. Sologic RCA is the ideal tool to complement our training course portfolio and support our clients in achieving operational excellence in project delivery. We very much look forward to our collaboration with Sologic."

Companies interested in scheduling Sologic Root Cause Analysis training can learn more at www.thewellacademy.com or www.sologic-rca.com or can contact George Galloway for more information.

END

About The Well Academy

The Well Academy was founded by oil and gas industry professionals with a passion to improve well operations performance. We provide the drilling and well services industry with practical training solutions which are aimed at increasing both the competence levels and confidence of well-site teams and office-based personnel. We are one of the first training providers to successfully integrate human factors into our team based well operations training programs. Visit The Well Academy

About Sologic RCA

Sologic RCA method draws on the most advanced cause-and-effect methods and best practices focused on steps that deliver value and save time. The Sologic RCA method is universal, scalable, practical and intuitive for RCA novices and experts alike. It consists of logical, complete and accurate processes and terminology that's aligned to how the world works. It has been specifically designed to take the focus away from non-specific causes, opinion, blame and punishment by shifting the focus to systematic causes, objectivity, collaboration and data. Visit Sologic

For more information contact:

For Sologic

jonathan.batchelor@sologic.com | +44(0)1603-819130

For The Well Academy

george@thewellacademy.com | +31(0)652-542114

